EMPLOYMENT LAW

Charles Philip specialises in employment law. He has been advising companies on employment and social security law matters for nearly twenty years, both in an advisory and dispute resolution capacity. His area of professional expertise covers individual and collective workplace relations as well as corporate reorganisations and restructurings and the prevention of conflicts.

His clients include companies operating in the industrial, services, construction, banking and engineering sectors, and local authorities.

In recent years, Charles has developed a practice and expertise in individual and collective negotiation strategies, electoral disputes and criminal employment law.

Closely involved in the entrepreneurial world, Charles daily advises business founders and executives through personalised training and discussions, and is also active within entrepreneurial networks and associations such as Réseau Entreprendre Atlantique.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

- Individual employment relations
