

Racine Nantes

Capital of the Grand-Ouest area of France, Nantes is the sixth largest French urban area. Between its service sector and its industry, the Nantes economic fabric acts as a model due to its dynamism and appeal. The law firm, which became part of Racine in 2008, has been established in the area for more than fifty years.

With its 301 lawyers, including eight partners, Racine Nantes acts for its clients in both an advisory and dispute resolution capacity in all areas of business law for a client base made up of national and international groups and SMEs.

Close to its clients, the office acts as a true partner for businesses and executives, providing them responsiveness, security and pragmatism.

The office's various departments work daily in close collaboration and in total synergy, thus fostering a comprehensive approach and enhanced understanding of the stakes and challenges of the matters entrusted to them.

With a resolutely dynamic and committed outlook, the lawyers at Racine Nantes are actors in the local economy and are also members of various professional associations. Aware of the importance of foreseeing the constant changes in their clients' economic and legal landscapes, training is a key aspect of their work. To this end, the firm is listed as a training organisation.
